Deep in the heart of the magnificent rainforest, there was a calm, quiet clearing. Directly in the centre, there was a platform surrounded by beautiful flours (which glistened in the mourning sunlight). Every day, without fail, a silent, mysterious creature would come to the clearing to practice its song. The creature (which was indistinct and strange) would sing allowed each mourning, entertaining the animals who were how'sed in the forest. Following a prophesy from a mythical wizard, the magical creature knew that its destiny was to advice the other animals (including the fish and foul) for the rest of time through song.
